Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time – June 28, 2026 – Guest article 13th Sunday in Ordinary Time Receiving the Prophet by Fr. Lawrence E. Mick

Today's first reading and Gospel speak of hospitality toward those who serve God. The first reading tells the story of Elisha, who was welcomed by an influential woman in Shunem. She arranged a room for him to use and offered sustenance whenever he came to town. In response, the prophet promises that she and her husband would have a son.

In the Gospel, Jesus challenges us to follow him before every other relationship and concern. Then, he speaks of offering hospitality to apostles, prophets, righteous persons and disciples. Even giving a cup of cold water will prompt God's favor, he says.

Hospitality is ultimately a matter of the heart. It's not just providing food and shelter but opening our hearts and lives to others. If following Christ is first in our lives, then we will naturally welcome those who speak God's word and share the good news.

In practice, of course, those who speak God's word are not always welcome in our lives or even in our churches. God's word is about love and blessing but it is also a word that calls us to change our lives by aligning with God's love and share God's blessings. Throughout history, prophets have been ignored or resisted and often abused and killed because God's wisdom continually challenges the misuse of creation and the abuse of others.

Perhaps our second reading today can offer encouragement to both prophets and their hearers. Embracing God's truth often means that something in our lives or our hearts must die. But that death leads to new life, a pattern we celebrate in baptism and recall in every celebration of the Eucharist. Following God's ways is not easy but it always leads to fuller life.

The issue of prophecy also links to this week's celebration of Independence Day in the United States. Many Catholics still react negatively to any criticism of our country, calling it unpatriotic. The alliance of state and church during the Second World War still leads many to assume that the church should always support the country, regardless of its actions or policies.

That position makes the church's mission of prophecy impossible. No country is perfect, and there is much in our country that is clearly contrary to Catholic teaching and Gospel values. To challenge those policies and situations is not unpatriotic but deeply patriotic. If we love our country, we should want it to improve and to align itself more fully with the word of God. The church must always make clear the difference between the kingdom of God and the kingdom of political power. Pray for your country, but do not make it an idol to worship.
